

Humanitas History Vertical Plan

10th

- question authority through constructive argument
- the interdependent nature of the world
- how ignorance and intolerance can lead to tragic consequences

11th

- how societal values should be reflected in policy decisions
- the interdependent nature of contemporary American society
- tolerance and diversity (and the ongoing struggle to achieve this) in contemporary American society

12th

- how the American system reflects values of public voice and choice
- how systems of economy reflect interdependence
- how systems of government and economy adapt to an increasingly diverse society